WHERE CAN A GIRL ALONE IN NEW YORK FIND ASSISTANCE?

Stories of a Young Woman In Quest of Shelter and Work In the Great City Bring to Light Hardships Endured By Another.

If a young woman coming to New York to make her way in the world finds herself stranded in the great city, what shall she do? To whom shall the go for assistance, and what kind of assistance will be offered to her?

This question has been asked in several articles in The Evening World. and a reporter told of her efforts to obtain shelter and employment. Her *stories have brought to light the experience of a really unfortunate young woman, and the treatment she received. A prominent woman physician in West 'Pwenty-fifth street, with whom the poor girl finally took refuge after her hours of wandering in the cruel cold, had read The Evening World and sent for Emmeline Pendennis.

The doctor asked the real name of the young woman be omitted. She called herself "Grace Jenkins." Her experience again makes it clear that there should be some institution that is neither a working-girls' home nor a "mission"-not a woman's hotel, not an employment agency, but a place where a girl, ordinarily self-supporting but out of work for the time, could be boarded and given practical help in her search for new employment.

Some other readers of The Evening World probably have had similar harrowing experiences. They are invited to describe for the benefit of their sisters in distress just what occurred when they were confronted

THEY LOSE FIVE-YEAR FIGHT.

Escaped Extradition by Resort to Courts Until the Case Was Taken to England.

LONDON, Feb. 8.-The Privy Council o-day rendered its decision in favor the American Government in the Green?-Garnor case. This meens that Greene and Gaynor, who vere indicted along with Capt. Oberlin Carter for defrauding the Government, can be extradited from Canada and brought back o the United States for prosecution and imprisonment.
The court reversed the two judgments of Justice Caron, of Quebec, Aug. 13, 1902, and ordered the respondents to pay the costs of the appeal. The council's decision caustically criticises the action of Justice Caron in releasing Greene and Gaynor and Caron's "extraordinary intervention" and adds:

"Where a prisoner is brought before a competent tribunal charged with an extradition offense and is remanded for the express purpose of affording the prosecution an opportunity of bringing forward evidence whereby the accase upon a writ of habeas corpus a learned judge treats a remand warrant as a nullity and proceeds to adjudirate the case as though the whole evience was before him, it would paralyze he administration of justice and render it impossible for proceedings in extradition to be effective.

Finding that, they would probably sufer as Carter was and that only long terms of imprisonment would be their deserts, Greene and Gaynor fled from New York, forfeiting their bonds and taking refuge in Canada. When Carter was found guilty and sentenced to serve five years in the United States Penitentiary at Fort efforts on the part of the United States Greene and Gaynor declared that they were out of the jurisdiction of the United States courts and that they were safe from arrest. Nevertheless, when officers representing this Government showed up in Montreal with war-
